CALL FOR PAPERS

CESifo Workshop on

GLOBAL INTERDEPENDENCE, DECOUPLING AND RECOUPLING

Organisers: Yin-Wong Cheung and Frank Westermann

to be held on 22-23 July 2011
on the island of San Servolo in the Bay of Venice, Italy

Workshop description

The strong economic performance of China, India and other emerging economies in the 2000s, even after the financial crisis of 2007/08, has rekindled the discussion on global interdependence in general and on decoupling (and later recoupling) between developed and developing economies in particular. Global interdependence is a complex issue that has significant policy implications for both tranquil times and crisis periods. The identification of interdependence patterns and their underlying causes is important for academics to understand the shock propagation mechanism and for policymakers to design stabilization policies.

The conference offers an excellent opportunity for researchers to present their original works on issues related to global interdependence and the decoupling-recoupling phenomenon. The conference's general theme is linkages between national economies with a special focus on the dependence between developed and developing countries. Possible topics include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following:

- Comovement of cycles between developed and developing economies
- Financial market interactions and contagion
- Coupling, decoupling, and recoupling – the evolution of interdependence patterns
- Stabilization policy in the globalization era
- International financial architecture and global interdependence

We would like to strike a good balance between academic rigor and practical relevance, and accommodate alternative viewpoints on these issues.
